Professor Joseph Eynaud is Head of the Department of Translation and Interpreting Studies. Born in 1946 he studied at the University of Malta and the University of Florence, Italy. He taught Italian in various Secondary State Schools and the Malta College of Arts, Science and Technology. When he joined the University of Malta in the late seventies he was appointed to teach Methodology related to the teaching of Italian as a Foreign Language within the Faculty of Education. In 1987 he joined the Department of Italian within the Faculty of Arts where he taught Modern and Contemporary Italian Literature, History of Italian Theatre and Comparative Literature. He served as Head of the Italian Department and as Deputy Dean of the Faculty of Arts establishing academic links with various Italian and European Universities. Between 2003 and 2008 he served as a freelance interpreter with SCIC and the Interpreting Unit of the European Parliament.

In 2003 he founded the Department of Translation and Interpreting Studies within the Faculty of Arts of which he is Head of Department. He set up the first Interpreters' Laboratory and Terminology Centre with the help of EU financial aid. The Department offers post-graduate Diploma and Masters courses in Translation and Interpreting Studies and participates actively in the programmes of the European Masters in Translation and the European Masters in Conference Interpreting. It has also established links with Lessius College in Antwerp, Westminster University in London, Marie Haps Institute in Brussels, the European Commission and the European Parliament. Prof. Eynaud was the President of the International Association of Italian Professors and has organized international congresses in Malta, Italy, Poland and Spain. He was awarded the title of Cavaliere della Repubblica Italiana by the President of the Italian Republic, by the President of the Italian Republic, H.E Azeglio Ciampi. He is the author of a number of books on Italo-Maltese Literature and textbooks for students reading Italian as a Foreign Language and has published various articles in scholarly journals on Language, Literature, Didactics and Translation. His latest publications intended for students of the Department are: Interpreting models and strategies for Maltese interpreters and Translation Studies: an Anglo-Maltese scenario of reproductive health. He has participated and read papers in a number of international fora, conferences and seminars.