Proposal for a

COUNCIL DECISION

providing macro-financial assistance to Georgia

(SEC(2005)1449)

(presented by the Commission)

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM

1) CONTEXT OF THE PROPOSAL

- Grounds for and objectives of the proposal

The Commission proposes to provide macro-financial assistance to Georgia in the form of a grant with a view to supporting the government's economic reform programme and helping the country reduce external indebtedness, thereby improving external and fiscal sustainability over the medium-term.

The proposed macro-financial assistance will be limited in time, complement support from the Bretton Woods Institutions, bilateral donors and the Paris Club, and will be conditional, in particular, on progress in the implementation of the IMF-supported PRGF arrangement. This operation will take place at a time when EU-Georgia relations are entering a phase of deeper integration through the inclusion of Georgia in the European Neighbourhood Policy.

- General context

Following the Rose Revolution of November 2003 a comprehensive economic reform process has been launched in Georgia, aimed at reviving growth, improving the business environment and reducing poverty. Significant emphasis has been put on fighting corruption and strengthening the rule of law.

Despite the progress made so far, Georgia continues to face a significant current account deficit and a high debt-to-GDP ratio, which, albeit declining gradually, represent a heavy burden on the budget. The current account deficit is projected to widen in 2005 to about 12 percent of GDP (7.6 percent in 2004), owing to robust import demand in the pipeline construction and other investment projects, before easing to around 7 percent in 2006. Anticipated privatisation deals could bring about a significant boost to private capital inflows to finance the wider current account deficit. External public and publicly guaranteed debt remains fairly stable in nominal terms at around USD 1.85 billion, equivalent to 36 percent of GDP at end-2004. Domestic public debt, consisting of Treasury bills and debt to the National Bank of Georgia, amounted to about 9 percent of GDP in 2004. Interest payments and amortisation represented some 13 percent of general government expenditure in 2004, corresponding to 2.5 percent of GDP. Domestic expenditure arrears, which totalled nearly 5 percent of GDP before the Rose Revolution, are expected to be fully repaid by end-2006.

Real GDP grew by 6.2 percent in 2004 and is projected to grow by 8.5 percent in 2005 (GDP growth was 6.8 percent year-on-year in the first half of 2005). As the current stimulus from oil and gas pipeline construction will tend to wane over time, adherence to structural reforms is needed to support robust growth in the economy. The 12-month inflation has been increasing somewhat, reaching 7.5 percent at end-2004. For 2005, the authorities aim to achieve an end-year inflation rate of 7 percent. This will require careful management of the government's discretionary spending in addition to the National Bank's commitment to an appropriately tight monetary stance.

Fiscal performance improved significantly in 2004, but a more expansionary stance has been decided for 2005. In 2004, the government managed to increase tax revenues by an impressive four percentage points of GDP (from 14.5 to 18.2 percent of GDP) which highlights the Georgian authorities' remarkable anti-corruption drive. As a result, the general government posted a surplus of 2.3 percent of GDP on a commitment basis, while on a cash basis the payment of expenditure arrears led to a deficit of 0.2 percent. In 2005 large increases in expenditure are planned against the backdrop of anticipated privatisation revenues. The general government deficit is projected to increase to 4.8 percent of GDP on a cash basis. Supported by a rebound in investor confidence, yields on Treasury bills have declined to approximately 10 percent from over 50 percent at late 2003.

Structural reforms focus on improving the business climate, reducing the energy sector quasi-fiscal deficit and fighting poverty. The new streamlined tax code which took effect in January 2005 was one of the first major reforms of the new government aimed at improving the business climate. A new customs code is under preparation and an overhaul of the licence system is also underway. The civil service has been downsized substantially in the early stages of the reinvigorated reform process, paving the way for higher salaries in the public sector. Privatisation has been resumed on a wide scale, including land and remaining large-scale industrial assets. Restoring the technical and financial viability of the energy sector remains perhaps the most difficult area still to be tackled. Quasi-fiscal losses of the power sector are estimated at around 4.5 percent of GDP. Given that the share of population living under the minimum subsistence level is hardly changed at 52.5 percent, poverty reduction is at the heart of the government's reform programmes in social protection, health and education, building on improved economic fundamentals. The Georgian poverty reduction strategy (the Economic Development and Poverty Reduction Program EDPRP) was presented by the previous government to the Executive Boards of IDA and the IMF in September 2003.

In the context of the European Neighbourhood Policy, EU-Georgia relations are bound to deepen through closer economic integration. The European Neighbourhood Action Plan, to be agreed between the EU and Georgia, is expected to include macroeconomic stability, measures to improve the investment climate as well as legislative and regulatory approximation with the EU among the priority areas.

The Executive Board of the International Monetary Fund approved in June 2004 a three-year arrangement under the Poverty Reduction and Growth Facility (PRGF) in an amount of SDR 98 million. Thereafter, the Paris Club creditors agreed in July 2004 to a restructuring of Georgia's bilateral official debt on the Houston terms. This Paris Club agreement consolidates about USD 160 million due on bilateral official debts contracted by Georgia before November 1999, consisting of arrears and maturities falling due from June 2004 to December 2006. The new Government of Georgia received strong support from the international community also at the donors' conference co-chaired by the European Commission and the World Bank in June 2004. At the donors' conference, the Commission pledged a total assistance amount of EUR 125 million, including an indicative amount of EUR 33.5 million in the form of macro-financial assistance for 2005/2006 subject to agreement by the EU Member States.

In the period 1998-2004, the Community made available to Georgia exceptional financial assistance consisting of a loan of EUR 110 million (disbursed in July 1998 after Georgia had settled arrears of EUR 131 million to the Community) and a total grant of EUR 65 million (of which only EUR 31.5 million was committed and paid by end-2004). For most of this period the Georgian authorities did not have a working financing arrangement with the IMF or they did not meet all specific EC conditions on structural reforms when the IMF-supported program was on track. The political situation remained unfavorable to reforms until the Rose Revolution of November 2003. As a result, the Commission was not in a position to release the grant component of the assistance as planned and, accordingly, Georgia's outstanding debt towards the Community (EUR 85.5 million) remains well above the targets set at the time of the preparation of the exceptional financial assistance.

Following the political regime change in late 2003, the new government embarked on a strong adjustment and reform programme. The main components of the government's economic policy agenda include fiscal consolidation and sound public finance management, restructuring and reform of the public administration, reinvigoration of privatisation and rehabilitation of the energy sector. Decisive action has been undertaken to fight against corruption and tax evasion. A new liberal tax code has been effective since January 2005 and further measures to improve the business climate are on the government agenda. Macroeconomic stability has been maintained with robust growth and subdued inflation. This reform drive bodes well for the implementation of the poverty reduction strategy. Given these commendable improvements in the overall economic policy environment, the Commission deems appropriate to make available to Georgia macro-financial assistance in the form of grants through re-programming of the uncommitted grant amount of EUR 33.5 million.

- Existing provisions in the area of the proposal

Council Decision of 17 November 1997 providing exceptional financial assistance for Armenia and Georgia (97/787/EC).

Council Decision of 20 March 2000 amending Decision 97/787/EC providing exceptional financial assistance for Armenia and Georgia in order to extend it to Tajikistan (2000/244/EC).

The present proposal for a new legal basis for macro-financial assistance to Georgia entails reprogramming of the uncommitted and undisbursed grant amount of EUR 33.5 million out of EUR 65 million which had been earmarked for Georgia under the total ceiling of EUR 130 million (Article 1(3) as amended by Decision 2000/244/EC).

- Consistency with other policies and objectives of the Union

EU-Georgia relations are entering a phase of deeper integration through the inclusion of Georgia in the European Neighbourhood Policy. The Community's assistance to Georgia through the macro-financial assistance instrument would contribute to the strengthening of the bilateral relations at a time when a European Neighbourhood Action Plan, currently under negotiation, will be entering the implementation phase. It is envisaged that from 2007 onwards the European Neighbourhood and Partnership Instrument will become available to Georgia, allowing assistance also in the form of budget support, whereas the macro-financial assistance instrument will be deployed in the interim period, aiming at improving medium-term debt sustainability and supporting the government's reform programme.

2) CONSULTATION OF INTERESTED PARTIES AND IMPACT ASSESSMENT

- Consultation of interested parties

The Georgian authorities requested further macro-financial assistance from the EC in 2004. The Commission services have been in contact with the authorities and the International Monetary Fund during the preparation of the present Commission proposal to discuss the modalities of the assistance. The Commission has consulted the Economic and Financial Committee before submitting its proposal. Following the adoption of the Council Decision, the Commission services will negotiate a Memorandum of Understanding with the Georgian authorities to lay down in detail the implementation modalities of the assistance.

- Collection and use of expertise

There was no need for external expertise.

- Impact assessment

Because the macro-financial assistance is a policy-based instrument, it is particularly well-suited to support the efforts of the Georgian government to improve the external and fiscal debt sustainability in the short-to-medium run.

By providing further macro-financial assistance in the form of grants, the Community will continue supporting Georgia's economic reform programmes. In the short-run, the macro-financial assistance will help the authorities to improve the external financial position of Georgia through a reduction in the country's net debtor position towards the Community. In the medium-run, the macro-financial assistance will foster external and fiscal debt sustainability by encouraging the authorities to implement appropriate macro-economic and structural policies.

3) LEGAL ELEMENTS OF THE PROPOSAL

- Summary of the proposed action

The Community shall make available to Georgia macro-financial assistance in the form of grants over a two-year period. The assistance will be made available in at least two instalments over the period 2006-2007 conditional on (i) the implementation of a set of measures to be jointly agreed with the government and (ii) a satisfactory implementation by Georgia of the IMF-supported economic programme. The grant payments are also linked to early debt repayments by Georgia of its outstanding debt towards the Community. The assistance is managed by the Commission which shall agree with the authorities the specific economic policy and financial conditions attached to the payment of the grant instalments. Specific provisions on the prevention of fraud and other irregularities, consistent with the Financial Regulation, will be duly taken into account.

- Legal basis

Article 308 of the Treaty

- Subsidiarity principle

The proposal falls under the exclusive competence of the Community. The subsidiarity principle therefore does not apply.

- Proportionality principle

The proposal complies with the proportionality principle for the following reason(s):

The assistance will be fully consistent with the macroeconomic targets already set in the IMF supported PRGF arrangement. As regards specific conditions attached to the disbursement of the grant instalments, the Commission intends to focus on a limited number of areas, including in particular public finance management.

The amount of the assistance is reprogrammed following the expiry of the implementation period of the exceptional financial assistance to Georgia and therefore remains within the ceiling provided for in the previous legal basis. This is deemed an appropriate level of burden sharing for the Community, given the assistance provided to Georgia by bilateral creditors and the international donor community in general.

- Choice of instruments

Proposed instruments: other.

Other means would not be adequate for the following reason(s):

In the absence of a framework regulation for the macro-financial assistance instrument, ad hoc Council decisions under Article 308 of the Treaty are the only available legal instrument for this assistance.

4) BUDGETARY IMPLICATION

EUR 33.5 million to be committed under budget line 01 03 02 01 "Macroeconomic assistance for partner countries of eastern Europe and central Asia".

5) ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

- Review/revision/sunset clause

The proposal includes a sunset clause.

5. DESCRIPTION AND GROUNDS

5.1. Need for Community intervention ⁵

5.1.1. Objectives pursued

The proposed assistance aims at supporting economic reforms and helping Georgia to further reduce its net debtor position towards the Community, thereby improving debt ratios and fiscal sustainability over the medium-term. This assistance is complementary to the resources provided by the International Financial Institutions and by bilateral donors.

⁵ For further information, see separate explanatory note.

5.1.2. Measures taken in connection with ex ante evaluation

An ex ante evaluation was carried out by Commission services in September 2004 and updated in July 2005.

5.1.3. Measures taken following ex post evaluation

No ex-post evaluation of the Community macro-financial assistance to Georgia has been carried out yet. A recent evaluation of a similar assistance to Armenia indicates that notwithstanding the short-term positive impact of the assistance on debt sustainability, the longer term impact on structural reforms is less evident. These conclusions point to the need to focus the EC policy conditionality on a smaller number of key reforms, on which adequate monitoring and close policy dialogue is maintained throughout the implementation period.

5.2. Action envisaged and budget intervention arrangements

This assistance will take the form of a straight grant of up to € 33.5 million (financed from the General Budget), to be released in at least two instalments. The disbursements will be conditional upon a satisfactory track record in the implementation of the present three-year arrangement agreed between Georgia and the IMF under the Poverty Reduction and Growth Facility (PRGF). Before the release of each instalment, the Commission services, in co-operation with the national authorities and the IMF staff, shall verify that the said arrangement is on track.

In addition, the Commission shall agree with the Georgian authorities on a number of specific policy conditions which have to be met before the release of the second and any further instalments. These conditions shall be consistent with agreements reached by Georgia with the IMF.

The grant instalments would be released only insofar as Georgia has made early debt repayments on its outstanding debt to the Community. The exact amounts of debt repayments, to be agreed with the authorities in a Memorandum of Understanding, would, as a rule, be at least the same as the amounts of the grant instalments.

5.3. Methods of implementation

This assistance will be implemented in the form of centralised direct management by the Commission using regular staff.

6. FINANCIAL IMPACT

6.1. Total financial impact on Part B - (over the entire programming period)

The total grant amount corresponds to the uncommitted part of the exceptional financial assistance to Georgia under Council Decisions 97/787/EC and 2000/244/EC. Therefore, the overall ceiling stipulated in the previous legal basis is not exceeded by the present proposal.

6.1.1. Financial intervention

7.1. Impact on human resources

8. FOLLOW-UP AND EVALUATION

8.1. Follow-up arrangements

This assistance is of macro-economic nature and its design is consistent with the IMF-supported economic programme. The monitoring will take place on the basis of progress in the implementation of the PRGF arrangement and specific reform measures to be agreed in a Memorandum of Understanding. The authorities will be required to report on a set of indicators on a regular basis.

The Commission services will continue to monitor public finance management, following the operational assessment of the financial circuits and administrative procedures carried out in preparation of this proposal. The Delegation of the European Commission to Georgia will provide regular reporting on issues relevant for the monitoring of the assistance. The Commission services will remain in close contact with the IMF and the World Bank.

8.2. Arrangements and schedule for the planned evaluation

An annual report to the European Parliament and to the Council is foreseen in the proposed Council decision, comprising an assessment of the implementation of this operation. Furthermore, an independent ex-post evaluation of the assistance by the Commission or its duly authorised representatives is planned to be carried out after the expiry of the implementation period.

9. ANTI-FRAUD MEASURES

The Commission services have put in place an on-going programme of Operational Assessments of the financial circuits and administrative procedures in all third countries benefiting from the Community macro-financial assistance in order to fulfil requirements of the Financial Regulation applicable to the General Budget of the European Communities. All available conclusions of the relevant reports of the IMF and the World Bank are also taken into consideration.

In Georgia, the Commission services, with the support of duly mandated external experts, carried out in October 2004 an operational assessment of the financial circuits and administrative procedures at the Ministry of Finance and the National Bank of Georgia. This review covered areas such as management structure and organisation, management and control of funds, security of IT systems, internal and external audit capacity as well as the independence of the central bank. It concluded that the framework for sound financial management of the Ministry of Finance is effective with regard to budgetary control, but needs to be strengthened and developed with regard to internal control within budget organisations and internal and external audit. The framework for sound financial management within the National Bank of Georgia is effective.

The proposed legal basis for macro-financial assistance to Georgia includes a provision on fraud prevention measures. These measures will be elaborated further in a Memorandum of Understanding. It is envisaged that specific policy conditions aimed at strengthening efficiency, transparency and accountability will be attached to the assistance.

The macro-financial assistance will be liable to verification, control and auditing procedures under the responsibility of the Commission, including the European Antifraud Office (OLAF), and by the European Court of Auditors.
