

PT PORTUGAL

This case study presents the situation in Portugal as regards the representation of men and women on the electoral lists in the elections for the European Parliament 2014.

The first two tables indicate the legal situation regarding the representation of men and women on the lists and the names of all parties and independent candidates which will partake in these elections.

The subsequent tables are sorted by those political parties which were already represented in the European Parliament between 2009 and 2014 and will firstly indicate whether and how a party quota applies and then present the first half of the candidates on the lists for the 2014 elections.

<sup>1</sup> Due to transitional arrangements due to the late implementation of the Lisbon treaty and the entry of Croatia, the number of MEPs per country in the term 2009 -2014 has fluctuated. Here we report the number of MEPs per country in the EU Parliament's term 2009 - 2014 as at the end of the term (May 2014).

National gender quotas apply: Yes/No	YES
If yes, describe what type (share of women, zipper system, etc)	Candidate lists for the elections to the National Assembly shall be composed in a way such as to promote a minimum representation of 33% of each sex (Articles 1 and 2 (1)).
Are there sanctions for non-compliance? (legal or financial) explain	If lists are not modified within a certain timeframe, non-compliance is to be made public and reduction of public funding will ensue provided for the conduct of the electoral campaign, in relation to the level of inequality on lists (Article 7). If either sex accounts for less than 20% of each list, the party will see public funding halved. For lists where either sex accounts for 20 to 33%, the reduction in public funding will be 25%. The financial sanction does not apply to lists with less than 3 names.
State Legal source and details	Equality Law No. 3/2006 of 21 August 2006.
Additional comments	Party quotas apply (cf. pertinent section)

SE SWEDEN

This case study presents the situation in Sweden as regards the representation of men and women on the electoral lists in the elections for the European Parliament 2014.

The first two tables indicate the legal situation regarding the representation of men and women on the lists and the names of all parties and independent candidates which will partake in these elections.

The subsequent tables are sorted by those political parties which were already represented in the European Parliament between 2009 and 2014 and will firstly indicate whether and how a party quota applies and then present the first half of the candidates on the lists for the 2014 elections.
