Paragraph 68 a (new)

Motion for a resolution

Amendment

68a. Points out that the Member States have differing industrial relations systems, which must be respected, and that sectoral and national collective agreements are essential to protect workers against exploitation; calls on the Commission to address the problem that in labour markets with a high prevalence of SMEs and where workers often lack proper representation at company level decentralised collective bargaining is not feasible because it might lead to a worsening of working conditions; believes that labour market segmentation has to be tackled by providing adequate protection to workers under all forms of contracts, including atypical and temporary agency contracts, and workers in economically dependent situations;

Paragraph 75 a (new)

Motion for a resolution

Amendment

75a. Rejects the Commission proposal to create a form of employment contract without legal protection and without fundamental social and labour rights – the so-called single open-ended contract - and is convinced that this type of contract would generate forms of discrimination at the workplace which would be at odds with the Charter of Fundamental Rights and the directive on equal treatment in employment and occupation, which clearly lays down the principle of equal treatment in the area of employment and working conditions, including dismissals and pay; points out that European institutions and bodies must respect the right to equal treatment and promote its application and observance;
