- grant the US formal rights with regard to implementing acts to be adopted pursuant to Article 291 TFEU, while the European Parliament has no right to scrutiny whatsoever with regard to implementing acts,

- grant the US the right to enter into regulatory exchanges concerning the adoption of national legislation by Member States, including joint examination of possible means to promote regulatory compatibility,

- could de facto make it more difficult for the EU to go beyond the lowest common denominator of international instruments owing to the commitments it has made regarding international regulatory cooperation and implementation of international instruments;

Ad. whereas the draft EU negotiation text on sanitary and phytosanitary measures tabled for the round of 29 September to 3 October 2014 suggests that obliging Parties apply tolerances and maximum residue levels set by the Codex Alimentarius Commission within 12 months of their adoption, unless the importing Party has signalled a reservation at the Codex Alimentarius Commission meeting; whereas there is a general pattern of lower amounts of pesticide residues allowed in food in the EU compared with those allowed by the Codex Alimentarius Commission; whereas over the last four years, the European Food Safety Authority (EFSA) has filed a reservation in 31-57 % of all cases, which highlights the large degree of disagreement by EFSA with the Codex standards; whereas EFSA currently feels free to express its reservations, within the limits possible; whereas once TTIP has been adopted, however, it is highly questionable whether EFSA will be allowed politically to continue to do so, given that the draft text intends to commit the EU and the US to collaborating in the international standard setting bodies ‘with a view to reaching mutually satisfactory outcomes’, which could discourage EFSA from filing reservations to the Codex Alimentarius Commission in the future and thus lead to weaker standards in the EU;

Paragraph 1 – introductory part

Motion for a resolution

1. Addresses, in the context of the ongoing negotiations on TTIP, the following recommendations to the Commission:

Amendment

1. Calls on the Commission to suspend immediately the ongoing negotiations on TTIP as a first step to reorienting the whole of the EU’s international trade policy, giving priority to citizens’ well-being and job creation, tackling the power and privileges of the corporate and financial sector (including tax privileges), addressing climate change, supporting genuine SMEs and public goods, reducing the EU’s dependence on the USA instead of increasing its subordination to US policies, diversifying trade exchanges, proposing new fair trade schemes to developing countries, seeking complementarity between the parties’ respective economies, building an EU foreign policy that is independent of the USA and securing peace, stability and decent movement of people in a fair and multipolar world, and to conduct a public consultation on the content and goals of trade negotiations;

Paragraph 1 – point a – point i

Motion for a resolution
(i) to ensure that transparent TTIP negotiations lead to an ambitious, comprehensive and balanced trade and investment agreement of a high standard that would promote sustainable growth with shared benefits across Member States, with mutual and reciprocal benefits between the partners, increase international competitiveness and open up new opportunities for EU companies, in particular SMEs, support the creation of high-quality jobs for European citizens, directly benefit European consumers; the content and the implementation of the agreement are more important than the speed of the negotiations; to stress that the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership (TTIP) is the most significant recent EU-US project and should reinvigorate the transatlantic partnership as a whole, beyond its trade aspects; to emphasise that its successful conclusion is of high geopolitical importance;

Amendment
(i) to ensure that all trade negotiations with the USA are transparent, lead to respect for, and the improvement of, social and environmental standards, fully respect the precautionary principle, promote sustainable growth with shared benefits across Member States, with mutual and reciprocal benefits between the partners, open up new opportunities for EU companies, in particular SMEs, support the creation of high-quality jobs for European citizens, directly benefit European consumers; to abandon instead the TTIP project, which is increasingly being rejected by citizens because it would only increase corporate power over international and national law, increase the regrettable subordinate role that the EU plays to the foreign affairs policies of the hegemonic USA, increase the consolidation of a Western geopolitical bloc with the USA, whose power is declining, and benefit corporate companies and financial sectors, but have a very negative environmental, economic and social impact on workers and peoples in the EU and the USA, and in the rest of the world;

  (ia) to ensure that the human rights clause includes:

  – a confirmation of states’ obligations under the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and other relevant international human rights instruments, including, but not limited to, the European Convention on Human Rights, the European Social Charter and the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights;

  – an assurance that the States Parties will interpret the provisions of the agreement in accordance with international human rights law;

  – an assurance that none of the obligations arising from the agreement will have the effect of modifying the obligations to respect, protect and fulfil fundamental rights in the EU;

  – an exception permitting the parties to suspend their obligations arising from the agreement if there are grounds to believe that they will result in a breach of fundamental rights;

– a mechanism for periodic human rights impact assessments to be conducted jointly by a designated committee of the US Congress and the European Parliament;

– a mechanism to bring complaints before national courts in order to initiate an investigation by the designated authority into human rights disputes arising under the agreement;

– procedures to ensure that citizens enjoy equality before the law;

– an assurance that the parties to the agreement will not, in any way whatsoever, privilege their own citizens relative to non-citizens, or otherwise discriminate against non-citizens merely on account of their citizenship status in any matter affected by the agreement which concerns public order, national security, crime or grounds of important public interest, such as internationally recognised labour, environmental, public health and food safety standards;

– an accessible mechanism to impose sanctions when fundamental rights and standards are breached and dialogue and mediation have been exhausted;

(i a) to reject the approach of a so-called ‘living agreement’ and to insist that all important questions of detail relating to the agreement be decided in the negotiations, as nothing shall be agreed until everything is agreed; to reject the proposal that regulatory issues should be subsequently referred to specially established groups of experts, bypassing the democratic legislative process;

Or. en
(ii) to emphasise that while the TTIP negotiations consist of negotiations on three main areas – ambitiously improving reciprocal market access (for goods, services, investment and public procurement at all levels of government), reducing NTBs and enhancing the compatibility of regulatory regimes, and developing common rules to address shared global trade challenges and opportunities – all these areas are equally important and need to be included in a comprehensive package; TTIP should be ambitious and binding on all levels of government on both sides of the Atlantic, the agreement should lead to lasting genuine market openness on a reciprocal basis and trade facilitation on the ground, and should pay particular attention to structural measures to achieve greater transatlantic cooperation while upholding regulatory standards and consumer protection and preventing social, fiscal and environmental dumping;

(ii) to ensure that no standards within the European legal framework are lowered, and to pay particular attention to structural means of achieving greater transatlantic cooperation while upholding regulatory standards and consumers protection and preventing social fiscal and environmental dumping;
