MOTION FOR A RESOLUTION

pursuant to Rule 133 of the Rules of Procedure on rewriting the rules regarding educational courses on lawfulness for young people, students and workers

Gianluca Buonanno

Motion for a European Parliament Resolution on rewriting the rules regarding educational courses on lawfulness for young people, students and workers

The European Parliament,

- having regard to Rule 133 of its Rules of Procedure,
- A. whereas education on lawfulness is intended to foster full understanding and application of societal rules, the values of democracy and the exercise of citizenship rights;
- B. whereas education about lawfulness means disseminating a culture of civic values;
- C. whereas it is essential that people understand that society and life are based on fundamental values, such as dignity and freedom;
- D. whereas the courses, in their own merit, could become an essential cultural basis for supporting individuals' growth, particularly among young people;
- E. whereas the principle of lawfulness could represent a useful means for peaceful education and coexistence, and focusing on that principle could encourage responsible participation in social and civic life;
- 1. Calls for greater attention to be devoted to the issue, which should be considered a priority;
- 2. Calls on the Commission to establish regulations for Member States regarding educational courses on lawfulness for young people, students and workers.
