Amendment

26. Welcomes the Commission's proposal for a directive on work-life balance for workers and carers; emphasises, in this context, the importance of an individual's rights to leave and to ask for flexible working arrangements that might address the particular challenges encountered by working parents and/or carers looking after a relative suffering from cancer and related comorbidities;

26. Welcomes the Commission's proposal for a directive on work-life balance for workers and carers; stresses that this should include specific measures designed to reduce the risk of cancer for women working night shifts; emphasises, in this context, the importance of an individual's rights to leave and to ask for flexible working arrangements that might address the particular challenges encountered by working parents and/or carers looking after a relative suffering from cancer and related comorbidities;
