Ra. whereas the scientific criteria developed for the determination of EDCs in pesticides and biocides lack a category of ‘suspected EDCs’ and are therefore not fit for horizontal application; whereas this is not consistent with the classification of substances that are carcinogenic, mutagenic or toxic to reproduction (CMRs) under the CLP Regulation and the 7th EAP; whereas the ability to identify suspected EDCs is extremely important, all the more so because both the Cosmetics Regulation and the Toy Safety Directive not only restrict known and presumed CMRs (categories 1A and 1B), but also suspected CMRs (category 2);

Ua. whereas the failures in the implementation of the Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Restriction of Chemicals (REACH) Regulation (high percentage of non-compliant registration dossiers, slow evaluations due to missing data and failure to take regulatory action on substances found following evaluation to pose a serious risk to human health or the environment) also lead to a failure to minimise exposure to known or suspected endocrine disruptors;

Paragraph 11 a (new)

11a. Calls on the European Chemicals Agency, the Commission and the Member States to take all necessary measures to ensure the compliance of registration dossiers with the Registration, Evaluation, Authorisation and Restriction of Chemicals (REACH) Regulation by the end of 2019, to accelerate substance evaluation and to implement effectively the final conclusions of substance evaluations under REACH as an important means of minimising exposure to endocrine disruptors;
