Subject: European transport corridors

Can the Commission state why the Jutland Transport Corridor, linking Sicily via Central Europe to North Germany and Jutland, has not been selected as one of the nine core network corridors that are intended to bring Europe closer together in the future? In this connection, can the Commission state whether it believes that this will have a positive effect on trade, mobility and growth in Europe? Finally, can the Commission state whether it is minded to reconsider this decision when the forthcoming EUR 300 million growth package is implemented?
