

Question for written answer E-008928/2014
to the Commission
Rule 130
Viorica Dăncilă (S&D)

Subject: Tourist transport services

Local authorities in several parts of the EU are looking for ways to develop new tourist services, with the aim of attracting tourists and ensuring they continue to visit.

One of the proposals involves developing a system of inter-regional public transport between different tourist areas at affordable prices, so that tourists have better access to the local attractions in each area.

How will the Commission support the efforts of local and regional authorities to develop transport networks of this type and therefore enable greater numbers of people to access areas of interest to tourists?