Subject: Corporate social responsibility

The Commission has pioneered the development of public policies for promoting corporate social responsibility (CSR) and has made a significant contribution to the progress made through a number of proposals, such as the setting-up of the European multi-stakeholder forum on CSR and the renewed EU strategy 2011-14 for CSR, which contains a specific Action Plan.

1. Now that the time-period established for the strategy has expired, can the Commission confirm whether it is working on another renewed strategy and a new Action Plan and whether it is planning to publish a report assessing and analysing the progress made over the past few years?
2. In August 2014 a public consultation seeking feedback on the shortcomings and future challenges of the Commission's activities on CSR was brought to a close. When will the report that is due to form the basis for the preparation of the February 2015 plenary meeting of the European multi-stakeholder forum on CSR be published?
3. What other activities is the Commission planning to organise on the subject of CSR in the coming months?
