Subject: Mapping the Cost of Non-Europe

In July 2014, the European Added Value Unit, part of the European Parliamentary Research Service, published the second edition of its report, 'Mapping the Cost of Non-Europe 2014-2019'. The report estimates the total cost of non-Europe to be EUR 990 billion. The different sectors analysed range from the digital single market to the costs of violence against women.

1. Is the Commission already aware of this report?
2. What is its opinion of the report?
3. If it takes a positive view of the report, does the Commission intend to consider the report in its future decisions and in establishing its priorities?
