Subject: Result of consultation on ISDS under TTIP

What is the Commission's reaction to the large number of responses and extraordinary level of public participation in this consultation?

What weight will the Commission give in the forthcoming negotiations to the clearly very high percentage of opinions rejecting Investor-State Dispute Settlement (ISDS)?

Will the Commission now refrain from including ISDS as part of TTIP?

Is the Commission still pursuing the objective of making ISDS clauses part of the TTIP agreement?
What is the purpose of public consultation if the Commission disregards its outcome?
