

Question for written answer E-001424/2015
to the Commission
Rule 130
Beatrix von Storch (ECR)

Subject: EFSI risk exposure

The European Fund for Strategic Investments (EFSI) is intended to be leveraged in a variety of ways, so as to ultimately yield many times the equity capital invested. By the laws of economics, this increases the risk to which the invested equity capital is exposed.

How great, in the Commission's estimate, is the risk of losses of invested capital, and how much does it expect the fund to yield?

Under what circumstances does the Commission consider the European Investment Bank's equity capital would be in danger, and what does it think is the risk that the bank will have to increase the fund's capital?