Subject: Parliament's withholding of approval for the Commission Work Programme

Did the Commission submit its work programmes for Parliament's approval during previous parliamentary terms and, if so, did Parliament approve or reject them?

What, as a rule, are the consequences if the work programme is not approved, and what, in this case, will the Commission under Jean-Claude Juncker do in response to Parliament's withholding of approval?

In the absence of any consequences, what, from the Commission's standpoint, is the actual purpose of a parliamentary resolution of approval?
