Subject: Review of the 11th European Development Fund

The recent Ebola outbreak showed that weak health systems in the countries affected were one of the main causes of such a rapid spread of the disease. During the outbreak, already weak health systems in these countries further deteriorated.

Does the Commission plan to review and possibly revise the 11th European Development Fund National Indicative Programmes – especially when it comes to countries affected by the Ebola outbreak – to ensure that enough funding is secured to restore and put in place adequate health systems in developing countries?
