

Question for written answer E-001818/2015
to the Commission

Rule 130

Ivan Jakovčić (ALDE)

Subject: Direct transmission of European cultural events

The European Union funds or co-funds a number of cultural and other very interesting events in all of the Member States. These events are often a delightful experience for those attending.

Today's technology allows easy transmission of such events to any public place (squares, cinemas, schools, etc.), which can be of great interest for the enrichment of life in small communities that are deprived of such events.

Creating a network of venues interested in direct (or subsequent) transmission of cultural and other events sponsored by the European Union would help to enable tens of thousands of venues and hundreds of thousands of people to enjoy European creativity and achievements.

Does the Commission intend to establish such an innovative system of cooperation in the promotion of European cultural and other events?