

Question for written answer E-002747/2015
to the Commission
Rule 130
Ivan Jakovčić (ALDE)

Subject: Plant reproductive material law

The 'plant reproductive material law' is intended to protect plant reproductive materials on European soil.

However, this may endanger centuries- and millennium-old plant reproductive materials which are a form of European heritage.

Can the Commission say how very rare plant reproductive materials can be protected, with a view to informing users?