Subject: Liberalisation of services with Albania

Liberalisation of the services sector is one of the main aims of the EU's Association and Stabilisation Agreement with Albania. In this respect, the contracting parties have undertaken to take the necessary steps to enable services to be supplied by EU or Albanian companies or nationals which are established in a contracting party other than that of the person for whom the services are intended.

What progress has been made on liberalising services between the EU and Albania?

Does the Commission consider that this process will encourage Albanians to supply services in the EU to the same extent as EU citizens will do in Albania?
