

Question for written answer E-003827/2015
to the Commission
Rule 130
Ivan Jakovčić (ALDE)

Subject: Global water shortage

Scientists have predicted for decades that future wars will be fought because of the scarcity of water on our planet. Some argue that even the current wars in the Middle East are caused by the shortage of water. Global warming is only one of the causes of water shortage.

As developed countries are to blame for global warming, but also indirectly strongly feel the consequences of armed conflicts, I ask the Commission whether the European Union participates in the fight for the preservation of water resources in Asia and Africa?