Subject: Aid to the media

Issues of various media publications specialising in EU news are often circulating around the European institutions' buildings. One of those is European Voice, owned by The Economist Group, publisher of the weekly of the same name.

Issue 7, volume 21 of European Voice (19-25 February) opened with a headline reading 'Eurozone unites against radical left', accompanied by a photograph of the Greek Finance Minister.

Is there any form of aid, direct or indirect, from the EU for the production and dissemination of the above-mentioned news material, particularly in the case of European Voice?
