Subject: Potential health risks from wind power plants

Many Danish communities have suspended the expansion of wind power plants until further notice because it is uncertain whether or not the power plants pose a risk to health. The Danish Government has commissioned a study to investigate the possible risks to health (predominantly from infrasound), which is due to be completed by 2017.

Is the Commission aware of the potential health risks from wind power plants?

What measures is the Commission taking in order to obtain clarity regarding the health risks from wind power plants?

What is the Commission's opinion of the study which has been commissioned by the Danish Government?
