

Question for written answer E-006131/2015
to the Commission
Rule 130
Ivan Jakovčić (ALDE)

Subject: European students in the United States

There are twice as many European students at American universities than there are American students at European universities, and more than a half of European students (60 %) who have obtained a doctorate from American universities are opting to remain in the United States.

Does the European Commission have measures to motivate the aforementioned first-rate experts to return and work in EU Member States?