

Question for written answer E-006376/2015
to the Commission
Rule 130
Ivan Jakovčić (ALDE)

Subject: eHealth

eHealth is a part of the Commission's programme that is still in the making. The possibility of saving human lives in emergencies using the Internet technology has significantly increased. However, it will acquire its full meaning only when there is a single European system for the exchange of knowledge and experience by using the advantages of the Internet.

When and in what way does the Commission intend to propose a networking and the creation of a single European medical system for efficient exchange of knowledge and experience among physicians (at least in emergencies and complicated cases) for the sake of rescuing human lives?
