to the Commission
Rule 130
Ivan Jakovčić (ALDE)

Subject: Uber

The mobile application Uber is present in some 60 countries and is a highly successful company in the U.S. This application is also used in some EU Member States. In Croatia it is considered that the use of this application will create a very disloyal competition to traditional taxi services because Uber has no particular rules it must abide by.

How does the Commission view the development of transport services via Uber and similar applications and the future of passenger transport in the EU?
