Subject: Implementation of Regulation 1049/2001 and the provenance of Council documents

For the purposes of compliance with Regulation 1049/2001 regarding public access to European Parliament, Council and Commission documents, could the Council clarify how the provisions contained therein are interpreted and applied to documents emanating from the Presidencies of the Council of the European Union or the Council Secretariat and to those made accessible by Member State governments and authorities?

Could the Council further provide concrete instances of how such documents are handled differently, depending on their provenance, for the purpose indicated above?
