Subject: UK referendum on EU exit - EU communications strategy for its Member States

The question of staying in or leaving the Union is obviously one to be decided by individual Member States, by means of a referendum. However, in the light of the current prospects of a simultaneous UK exit from the EU and Greek departure from the Eurozone, of the UK's geopolitical importance for the EU, and of the long-term political prospect of EU enlargement with the objective, inter alia, of enhancing the EU's geopolitical importance globally:

Does the EU have an official communications strategy aimed at keeping its Member States within the Union?
