Subject: WHO study on obesity trends

On 6 May 2015, WHO presented the results of a study setting out projected obesity trends over the period to 2030.

Many Member States could be affected, some seriously; it could be, for example, that by 2030 almost everyone in Ireland will be regarded as obese.

What steps could the Commission take to counter these trends?

Would it consider organising a major information campaign, for example?
