Subject: Taking disabled people into account in the European semester

Today, disabled people represent 80 million European citizens, who have been hit hard by austerity policies, despite the Europe 2010-2020 strategy.

It is therefore high time to incorporate their concerns into the Commission's work and recommendations as regards European semester processes.

1. Is the Commission planning to incorporate these concerns?
2. If it is, will organisations representing disabled people also be brought on board?
