Subject:     Combating malaria

Combating malaria was one of the Millennium Development Goals for the period 2000-2015. Significant progress has been possible during that period. The large-scale distribution of mosquito nets and medical equipment enabled a 47% reduction in the malaria-related death rate in 2000-2013.

Nonetheless, while a great deal of progress has been made, there is still a long way to go towards eradicating malaria.

What steps is the Commission considering to continue the fight against malaria and eradicate the disease?
