

Question for written answer E-009403/2015
to the Commission
Rule 130
Davor Ivo Stier (PPE)

Subject: Regulation of charges for telephone calls and text messages to foreign numbers

Following the decision to do away with roaming, what can the Commission do, as far as the digital single market is concerned, about the high cost of calling or texting mobile numbers registered in another Member State? It is cheaper for EU citizens to text or call a foreign number when roaming abroad than it is to text or make calls in their home Member State when the number called belongs to a foreign telecommunications operator.