Subject: Further efforts by the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control to have a workforce that is representative of EU citizens

In its response to Written Questions E-008102/2014, E-007850/2014 and E-007851/2014, the Commission stated that it 'strives to be representative of the increasingly diverse European citizens it serves'.

How does the European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control think it is currently doing in having a workforce that is representative of the diversity of EU citizens?

What further efforts could it make in this regard?
