Subject: Better lawmaking and the subsidiarity principle

In a speech he gave at Parliament on 8 July 2015 presenting the programme for the Luxembourg Council Presidency, Luxembourg's Prime Minister Xavier Bettel announced that work on the new inter-institutional agreement would be completed before the end of the year. Given that more and more people believe that the subsidiarity principle should be observed and that excessive regulation should be avoided, does the Council propose to incorporate into the agreement new mechanisms and provisions designed to improve the legislative process and ensure that the subsidiarity principle is indeed observed?
