Subject: EU-funded aid for refugees

At the Commission meeting of 23 September 2015, President Juncker stated in his speech that 'since the beginning of the crisis in May the Commission has not left any stone unturned to find money in our EU budget', claiming that 'we have more than doubled the resources to tackle the refugee crisis – from EUR 4.6 billion to EUR 9.2 billion'. We believe, however, that it is necessary to clarify whether these funds are actually being channelled into humanitarian aid and social integration.

To that end, beyond the sums spectacularly announced, the following needs to be cleared up:

What amount of these funds will be allocated to border controls and security?

What amount of these funds will be allocated to returning migrants to their countries of origin?
