Subject: Ecology for European consumers

Danish ecological milk can this year celebrate 25 years since this Danish eco-brand was introduced. Denmark is the country in the world where most ecological products are sold per capita. Ecological production is therefore the basis for many farmers' activity today, and consumers have confidence in the ecology brand.

What will the Commission do to promote ecological production in Europe?

Will the Commission make use of the Danish experiences?

Does the Commission want the same ecological rules in the different Member States?
