Subject: Attacks on the vessels of refugees and migrants

Watch the Med reported on 5 August 2015 that there is evidence that vessels transporting migrants and refugees in the Aegean Sea were violently attacked and had their engines removed and their hulls breached, allegedly by the forces of a 'coastguard'. If true, this is an extremely serious situation.

Can the Commission say to what extent it will be possible for Frontex and the EUNAVFOR Med mission to be involved in these cases? What information does the Commission have about these reports?

What action is planned to put a stop to this humanitarian crisis, for which the EU has not been able to find courses of action based on the highest values of human rights and solidarity between peoples?
