Subject: Wrong-way drivers on Europe's roads

Recently there was another tragic accident in Denmark in which two young people were killed as a result of the actions of a wrong-way driver. Unfortunately, this is not the first time this has happened in Denmark or elsewhere in Europe. Over the past few years there have been more and more media reports about such incidents, and every time innocent people are involved.

Does the Commission have an overview of how widespread this problem is?

What is the Commission currently doing to reduce the number of people who are killed or injured by wrong-way drivers on Europe's roads?

What will the Commission do in future to cut road deaths?
