Subject: Reception of migrants in Greece

It has been reported in the press that the Commissioner for Health, Mr Andriukaitis, has written to Mr Juncker describing the appalling humanitarian and sanitary conditions for the reception of migrants on the island of Lesbos. It is clear that this situation is a human tragedy and gives a deplorable image of the European Union.

What measures does the Commission intend to take in order to put in place as rapidly as possible reception conditions worthy of our values and thus commensurate with human dignity?
