Subject: EU Trust Funds implementation and new counterterrorism legislation

The EU Trust Funds have a clear political focus on humanitarian aid.

Following the dramatic terrorist attacks which occurred in Paris in November 2015, several Member States and the EU itself adopted new security and counterterrorism legislation, which may have an impact on the implementation of these Trust Funds, as already highlighted by a recent OCHA report.

What impact does the Commission think the existing counterterrorism legislation may have on the implementation of the Trust Funds, and in particular on implementing partners?
