

Question for written answer E-004375/2016
to the Commission
Rule 130
Sorin Moisă (S&D)

Subject: Efficient State aid

In order to encourage investment in the renewable electricity generation sector, Member States can make use of a wide array of State aid instruments (including repayable advances, direct grants, tax credits and tax reductions) as long as it has been proven that the chosen instrument will cause the least possible distortion to the market. In this context, has the Commission carried out an evaluation of which instruments have proven the most cost-effective in bringing renewables to the electricity generation market?