Subject: supporting transport efficiency

In light of the fact that we are considerably behind on reaching the target to have 10% of energy come from renewable sources by 2020 in the transport sector, partly due to the difficulties in implementing the renewable energy strategy for transport which is based on biofuels, I would like to ask the following questions:

1. When will the Commission start working on a proposal for legislative reforms to support the use of electronic vehicles powered by renewable electricity?
2. When will the Commission put forward reform proposals to encourage support for developing biofuels that are highly-efficient with respect to greenhouse gas emissions, taking into account indirect land use changes for the period after 2020?
