

Question for written answer E-005345/2016
to the Commission

Rule 130

Dominique Martin (ENF)

Subject: Intra-European migration

Social convergence is rightly seen as key to achieving a single internal market. The Posted Workers Directive, which is met with a great deal of reluctance, forms a solid basis for the free movement of workers, whose mobility is assumed to be voluntary:

In reality, is the Commission encouraging not only social dumping but also a form of intra-European economic migration which has not been chosen?