Subject: Foreign investment

According to the Department for International Trade Inward Investment Results 2015/16, foreign investment in the United Kingdom, Brexit notwithstanding, has increased by 11%, a figure which translates into 2 213 new projects and 83 000 newly created jobs. The British Government's declared aim is to make the United Kingdom the prime target for foreign investors in Europe.

Brexit can be described as a roaring success.

What sort of measures is the Commission thinking of taking to boost growth, attract foreign investors, and compensate for the British withdrawal?
