

Question for written answer E-007352/2016
to the Commission
Rule 130
Edward Czesak (ECR)

Subject: Availability of housing for vulnerable communities

Some communities in the EU are struggling with a lack of financial resources and housing issues. The United Nations and the Council of Europe have said that 'everyone has the right to a standard of living adequate for the health and well-being of himself and of his family, including food, clothing, housing [...]'.

1. When will the Commission take the measures needed to make the above statement a reality?
2. Is making housing accessible to everyone not merely a temporary solution? Would it not be better to take a series of more extensive and complex measures to tackle the housing deficit?
3. Will the Commission take steps to solve the problem, and if so, when?
