Subject: Obsolete or void links and websites on the Commission website

When conducting a research online using various search engines, obsolete or void links and webpages are frequently found on the Commission's website. This material appears in search results and clogs up navigation, ultimately confusing or misleading users.

1. How often does the Commission verify the functionality of all the links found on its website?
2. Does the Commission take into consideration the possibility of removing such obsolete or void links and websites?
