to the Commission

Rule 130

Dominique Martin (ENF)

Subject: European Fund for Strategic Investments and job creation

The European Fund for Strategic Investments (EFSI) was put in place as a central pillar of the investment plan for Europe. It aims to stimulate economic growth in the long term and make the European Union more competitive. Achieving these goals requires action to stimulate the labour market in Europe and create new jobs.

In its assessment of EFSI, however, the Commission made no mention of the number of jobs that have been created thanks to the fund up to now.

Can the Commission say how many new jobs have been created thanks to EFSI?
