Subject: Flagship initiative for the garment sector

The Commission has proposed setting up a flagship initiative for the garment sector following the Rana Plaza disaster in Bangladesh in 2013.

The initiative aims to encourage better coordination between the parties concerned, raise awareness among EU consumers, improve transparency in supply chains and encourage the developing countries to improve working conditions.

What measures would the Commission like to introduce to achieve these aims?

Where will funding for this initiative come from?

How does the Commission plan to measure the results of the initiative?
