Subject: Use of Structural Funds to bring about demographic change in Spain

As a follow-up to my previous question E-002101/2015, entitled 'Use of Structural Funds to implement demographic change in Spain', which I asked because regional policy is a vital tool for addressing demographic change, I would like to obtain more up-to-date information.

1. How much has Spain spent effectively in a bid to bring about demographic change between 2014 and the present day?
2. How are the initiatives for the 2014-2020 period progressing?
3. What are the expectations for the second half of that period?
