to the Commission

Rule 130

José Blanco López (S&D)

Subject: Targets in the automotive industry

A recent study by PA Consulting has concluded that only three car manufacturers will succeed in reaching the target of emitting less than 95 grams of CO₂ per kilometre by 2021. A further six of the world's largest vehicle producers, however, will miss the target.

In light of this study and the fines that would be faced by any company that fails to comply with the objectives, could the Commission say whether these figures are in line with its own information and whether it is monitoring car manufacturers closely with a view to ensuring that these targets will be met?
