Subject: Access to transport for persons with disabilities

Integration of persons with disabilities into the community is one of the EU's priorities, as stated in the European Accessibility Act and the European Disability Strategy 2010-2020. To foster this process, accessible transport, taking different types of disability into account, is essential, as studies have shown that persons with increased access to transport have a better quality of life, while their degree of social isolation is notably lower.

Although much has been achieved in this respect, further actions are needed to ensure safe and efficient travel for persons with different disabilities. What incentives does the Commission plan to offer in order to ensure equal access of persons with disabilities to public transport services in all the Member States?
